Seminary student drowns after sneaking canoe trip

BY ANITA DINWIDDIE

A 15-year-old seminary student drowned Sunday afternoon after a canoe in which he and two other companions were in capsized in a small pond owned by the seminary.

The youth was identified as Felton J. Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Felton William Boyd of Baton Rouge, La. and a freshman at St. Augustine Seminary in Bay St. Louis.

St. Augustine rector, Father Gerhard Voger, said that Boyd, and two other companions, Vernon Swanier and Vernon Dedeaux, apparently took the canoe without permission from campus to the pond located across the street when the canoe tipped with the boys at approximately 4:55 p.m.

All three boys were thrown into the water, but Swanier and Dedeaux, both also 15-years-old, were able to reach shore. The youths said they attempted to rescue Boyd before returning to the school to report the incident.

Bay St. Louis police and firemen were called to the scene and recovered the body at approximately 5:30 p.m. Boyd was pronounced dead on arrival at Hancock General Hospital where he was transported by Mobile Medic Ambulance.

"The boys were not supposed to be in the pond," Voger said. "We have signs up around the pond warning the students not to swim in it, but they are always being torn down. It is very hard with boys to keep them from trying this sort of thing."

Voger said the pond, along with a smaller one elsewhere on seminary property, were created almost 15 years ago when the seminary sold dirt fill to the state highway department for road construction in Bay St. Louis. The excavations had filled with rain water afterwards, he said.

The same pond also claimed the life of another youth in the early 60's as the result of another drowning accident. Voger said Tuesday he felt the seminary had taken sufficient precautions after the first drowning to prevent another accident when the school posted the warning signs.

No signs were visible Sunday after the drowning. Voger said Tuesday he did not think it would be possible to drain the pond. "We will do something about the pond," the rector said. "We will put up more signs around the pond of course,

Save the Bay hearing reset

By David Pierson

A hearing on Save the Bay's challenge of the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission (MAWPCC) permit to the DuPont Company has been rescheduled for April 18 in Harrison County Chancery Court.

The hearing was scheduled for Monday March 24, but a March 12 request by Save the Bay delayed the hearing.

Save the Bay, Inc., a group of landowners opposed to the DuPont Company's plans to locate a chemical plant north of the Bay of St. Louis, is petitioning the court to disallow the MAWPCC permit which authorizes DuPont to discharge neutral salts into the Bay and to dispose of the more toxic wastes by means of a deep well injection system.

DuPont last month bought 2,200 acres of land north of the Bay for construction of its estimated $125 million titanium dioxide pigments plant. According to the county land rolls, DuPont paid almost $2.5 million to a group of New Orleans businessmen for the largest portion of that land.

DuPont, however, has delayed construction of the plant due reportedly to the present economic situation, but company spokesmen estimate that construction could begin before the end of the year, if the permits survive court challenges.

Finally, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers announced this week that it will hold its public hearing April 30 in

Mayors bitter over 'cruel hoax'

By David Pierson

"I think it's a cruel hoax," said Pass Christian Mayor Steve Saucier. "It completely cuts out the smaller towns." "All the cities got down and really worked for this. Then we all got zonked," said Mayor Sam Maxwell of Long Beach.

Saucier and Maxwell were both bitter upon receiving notice Monday that none of the local cities and counties competing for $226,000 in federal monies would be eligible for funding.

The cities of Pass Christian, Long Beach, Bay St. Louis, Waveland, and Wiggins, together with the counties of Harrison, Hancock, and Stone, were supposedly competing for federal grant money made available under the Community and Housing Development Act of 1974.

To qualify for the funding, the municipalities and the counties had to hold public forums, determine priorities, and then fill out pre-application forms stating how the money would be used.

However, Monday all parties learned that the funding for the grants was not available.

"What happened was that the funds were made unavailable in Washington because of the heavy interest on the part of the counties seeking urban-county designation that were entitled to automatic funding," said Jerry Perkins, program director for the regional office of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in Jackson.

By definition, an urban-county is one that has a population of more than 200,000 people — not counting the municipalities in that county.

"The cities of Gulfport and Biloxi, said Perkins, will not be affected by the shortage of funds. Biloxi will still receive about $11 million over the next three years, and Gulfport is expected to get $7 million over the same period.

"Obviously this is a big city program," said Mayor Steve Saucier. "There are no urban-counties in Mississippi." The irate Saucier said that he was planning to contact U.S. Representative Trent Lott and possibly U.S. Senators John Stennis and James Eastland "to protest this and see if anything can be done at that level."

"We spent over $1,000 just to file," said Saucier. "And that's all money that's lost. We can't be reimbursed for it."

Mayor Maxwell said that Long Beach did not suffer financially in filing the returns and enlisting technical assistance.

"I would feel a lot better if Pass Christian or Bay St. Louis or one of the other cities would have gotten some of the money," said Maxwell, "but I feel kind of bad because none of the cities got the money, and we were led to believe that some would get it."

Robert White, program representative for the regional office of HUD in Jackson, said Wednesday that the state still had between $9-9.5 million in non-SMSA funds to be divided statewide among 312 competing cities. White said, however, that he was not sure if SMSA cities—such as Pass Christian, Bay St. Louis, Long Beach, and Waveland—were eligible to compete for that share of federal funds.

Charting new growth

Waveland City Clerk Barbara Rapold and Postmaster Walter Turcotte go over plans for new home delivery of mail to all Waveland residents in annexed areas effective March 29.

Waveland annex areas receive home mail deliveries

WAVELAND — Effective Saturday, March 29, residents in the annexed portions of Waveland will receive curb line delivery of mail, according to Postmaster Walter F. Turcotte.

Turcotte said the change from general and box delivery to home delivery will initially effect approximately 389 families.

Waveland Mayor John Longo and Turcotte were instrumental recently in having mail to Waveland residents rerouted directly to Waveland instead of being sorted through the Bay St. Louis Post Office.

Since last summer mail for Waveland residents has been sent directly to the Waveland Post Office, but a carrier from Bay St. Louis had been required to come to Waveland to work the mail.

The Bay St. Louis carrier will be eliminated, Turcotte said Wednesday.

and another carrier will be employed by the Waveland Post Office to handle the increased mail.

The new route, which will be approximately five miles long, will be a motorized route, the postmaster said, necessitating another motor cart as well. The post office should receive its new cart this week, he added.

Turcotte said memorandums were being mailed this week to all postal patrons in the affected area requesting that they facilitate the new change by attaching house numbers in a visible manner to their house and mail box. Persons uncertain of their house number may obtain that information from the Waveland City Hall.

"It will also be beneficial," Turcotte added, "if persons will notify utility companies, social security, and other correspondents of their new address."

Ready for operation

The new hangar at Stennis International airport will soon service aircraft of the 707 and DC 8 class with the opening of a new 8,500 foot runway. The airport was designed for heavy cargo planes to relieve freight traffic at New Orleans International airport.

Stennis runway receives final approval

A new runway capable of handling 707 and DC 8 class aircraft was opened officially at Stennis International Airport following a final inspection by FAA engineers from the Jackson, Mississippi Airport District office Tuesday.

FAA engineer Frank Fromherz conducted the inspection tour of the new 8,500 foot runway which was begun over a year ago by T. L. James Construction Co. at a cost of $2.5 million.

"I think that it will not be long before we will be able to take some of the strain off New Orleans International Airport," said E. Durand Bailey, manager of Global Associates, Stennis operators. "I would estimate that we will soon be doing a 25,000 to 50,000 unit operation per year at Stennis."

Some features of the new airport are a small taxiway for aircraft up to 60,000 lbs. and runway with a 280,000 lbs. capacity for large craft. A cargo ramp for planes and freight forwarders is also available.

The airport will be equipped with an economy approach lighting system which will allow pilots to activate the runway lights from the plane with a transmitter. When activated, the lights will remain on for 15 minutes only, as an energy conservation measure.

Federal Airport Development and Assistance funds paid for 75 percent of the project cost with the remaining 25 percent being supplied by the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission who were present for the inspection along with the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

"This is really an ideal location for the airport," Bailey said, "because we are in the middle of a buffer zone on one side and swamps on the other, so there is no problem with noise."

The only deficiency that was cited at the Tuesday inspection was the quality of the entrance road to the airport. Construction workers said the road is not made for the kind of heavy duty traffic that will be using it. The port and harbor commission has taken the condition of the road under advisement.

Board instructs Ladner to improve road conditions

A motion-instructing Beat One Supervisor Jerry Ladner to begin maintenance work immediately on state aid roads in his district was passed on a four-to-one vote Monday by Hancock Supervisors over the objections.

The action by the board was the result of a letter from the State Aid Road Division of the State Highway Department to Board Chairman A. Dolph Kellar stating that funds for future state aid road work would be held back until the county could show proper maintenance of its present roads.

All of the roads listed in the letter are located in Ladner's beat, prompting Kellar and Supervisors Bully Zengarling and James Travirca to call the special session Monday. The motion passed by the board also states that the county will perform the maintenance work if Ladner fails to do so.

"We can't allow one man to lose the money for state aid roads for the entire county," said Zengarling. Ladner maintained that the roads in his beat were in as good a shape as other roads in the county.

"I have over 300 miles of road in my beat," Ladner said, "and I would like for any one of you to drive out with me and find where these roads have not been kept up."

Kellar said that inspections on Oct. 30 and again on March 11 had shown the roads to be in unsatisfactory condition. He told board members that immediate action was necessary because of three projects in the county that must get underway before June 30. Under state law the present board cannot initiate any new projects within six months of election.

The three projects are the resealing of two roads in Beats Two, Three and Four and construction work on the Kiln-Fenton road.

Ladner accused Kellar of conspiring with the highway department to meddle in the affairs of his district. Kellar denied the accusation saying that the board was only doing what was necessary to avoid losing state money.

"Every controversy we have gotten into has started at the other end of this table," said Kellar indicating Ladner. "You came to this board with the expressed intention of defeating Dolph Kellar, and that is where all of the arguments on this board begin."

School board investigates violation

The Hancock County School Board authorized board attorney Joseph Gex to investigate charges of timber violations on sixteenth section acreage leased to Sidney Evans at the board's Friday meeting. Evans was accused by County Forester Michael R. Williams of illegally cutting saw timber and pulpwood on the land.

The board was informed of the violation, totaling $747.88 in saw timber and $52.32 in pulpwood, by letter from Williams to the Hancock Board of Supervisors March 10. The letter was referred to the school board by the supervisors.

Williams recommended in his letter that Evans be the subject of criminal prosecution and a fine of $1600.40 under section 2385 of the Mississippi Code. The 22 acres of land was leased to Evans in 1969 for $10 per year.

In other business the school board approved recommendations from all principals to rehire teachers for the 1975-76 school year. All teachers presently employed by the county were recommended for rehiring.

The board also approved a vocational-technical work-study program organized through the State Board of Education for six students in the county vo-tech class.

The students will be paid $200 per month, with 40 being contributed by the county and the remaining $160 being federally funded.

Gulfport man killed in one-car wreck

A 26-year-old Gulfport resident, Jerry J. Seale, was killed Friday evening in a one-car wreck on the Kiln-DeLisle Road.

The accident, which occurred at 10 p.m., was apparently the result of a failure to make a curve in the road. Hancock County Sheriff's Deputies Leo Woods and Harold Hainey investigated the accident, and reported that Seale was dead on the scene.

Workshop on Aging planned for Gulf Park

The Churches and the Needs of Older Mississippians" will be the theme for a workshop to be held at the Gulf Park Campus, University of Southern Mississippi on April 7-9.

This Workshop is being sponsored by the Mississippi Council on Aging and is administered through a contract with Methodist Senior Services of Tupelo.

Speakers for the workshop for interested church leaders will be Dr. Robert S. Cook, Director of the Church Training Department of the Florida Baptist Convention, and Dr. Herbert Shore, Executive Vice-president, Dallas Home for Jewish Aged. Both men are well known national leaders in the field of services to the aging.

"The objective of the workshop is to increase the awareness of Mississippi's religious leaders concerning the process of aging, the problems faced by older Mississippians, and programs which may contribute to their solution," a spokesman said.

The long range goal of the project is to develop more effective ministries to older persons by local churches and community groups.

The workshop program will cover feelings about aging, understanding of what the aging process means and how ministry can be performed, as well as specific planning for local church and community projects.

This is the fourth in a series of workshops for church leaders which have been held under the auspices of the Mississippi Council on Aging across the state. Approximately 300 Mississippi pastors and church leaders from various denominations have already participated in similar workshops. About 100 participants are expected in the Gulf Coast workshop.

Additional information may be secured by calling the Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District, Aging Division at 868-2311, or by writing to the Mississippi Council on Aging at Box 5138, Fondren Station, Jackson, Mississippi 39216.

Brothers injured in one-car crash

Two Bay St. Louis residents were reported in serious condition at Gulfport General Hospital following a one-car wreck on Web St. in Bay St. Louis Sunday, March 23, at approximately 11 p.m.

The two brothers, David and Tommy Rogers, 601 Esplanade St., apparently lost control of their 1961 Ford pickup and hit an oak tree while travelling east on Webb St.

David Rogers, 14, was driving without a license. Both he and his brother Tommy Rogers, 16, were taken to Gulfport Hospital by Mobile Medic.

Bay St. Louis police deputy Emitt Ellis handled the accident investigation.

School board files answer to suit today

The Hancock County School Board filed its answer to a federal suit against the four incumbent board members today in federal district court in Biloxi.

The answer, filed by attorney Walter Gex, admits all allegations that the election of present board members was a violation of the 1965 Voting Rights Act, as charged, but challenges the merits of calling a new election.

The school board answer concedes that the Mississippi statute followed in November 1974, which called for elections county-wide rather than by best, never received federal approval.

However, Gex states in his answer, school board candidates ran in "good faith" being unaware of any violation of the Voting Rights Act.

The incumbent board, Gex states, has been conducting school business in accordance with the law, and should, therefore, be declared de facto members until the next regularly scheduled election in approximately 21 months.

Gex agrees with the plaintiffs in his answer that new elections should be conducted under newly constructed redistricting.

However, the attorney said, the board's answer should not be construed to mean that it favors a transfer of school board elections back to a beat system.

Under the present makeup of the beats, Gex said, an election under this system would be a violation of the one man-one vote rule.

In taking the municipalities out of the structured beat system, he said, an imbalance would be created in the representation of the separate districts.

churches of all denominations have scheduled special Easter services this week beginning with Holy Thursday observations today.

School board suit may be decided by obsolete law

By ANITA DINWIDDIE
A federal suit against four members of the Hancock County School Board may be decided on the basis of a law which will go out of effect this summer, according to board attorney Joseph Gex.

Gex told board members Friday that the 1965 Voting Rights Act, which is the basis of the suit against the four board members and an earlier suit against a fifth member, Oris Ladner, will expire August 6, 1975, and there is some doubt that the U. S. Congress will renew the law.

Both law suits against the board members use this act to claim the illegality of the school board elections which were held under a Hancock County election law passed in 1968.

The suit claims the election of board members did not receive federal approval by county-wide vote, rather than by district, as required by the act.

"If the 1965 Voting Rights Act is not renewed in this session of Congress, and I think it might not be, Gex said, "the judge may throw the whole thing out as a moot case."

Mississippi Attorney General A. F. Sumner, State Senator Martin Smith of Poplarville and State Representative Stone Barefield of Hattiesburg recently went to the House Judiciary Committee in Washington to express their opposition to the renewal of the Voting Rights Act.

Sumner and the two legislators claim the law is discriminatory because the language of the act causes it to apply only to deep south states.

Pensioners limit increased $4000

A $4000 increase in income limits for Veterans Administration pensioners saved 74,000 veterans, widows and children from reduction or termination of benefits this year and made others eligible for the first time, Merlyn J. Cook, Assistant VA Center Director for Regional Office, said today.

Cook said there is no estimate yet of new eligibles under the increased limits.

Those potentially eligible, he explained, are veterans 65 years of age or older and younger veterans who are totally and permanently disabled from non-service-connected causes. Other income must not exceed $3,000 annually if there are no dependents. The annual limit is $4,200 for veterans with spouses or children.

Similar limits apply for widows of veterans who died of non-service-connected causes and for parents receiving dependency indemnity compensation (DIC). Children drawing benefits under the current pension law are limited to an annual income of $2,400.

The annual income limits were increased $400 above last year's levels by Public Law 93-527, effective Jan. 1. The legislation also provided a 12 percent increase in pension rates for 2.3 million veterans and survivors on VA pension and DIC parent rolls.

Cook emphasized there is no income limit for veterans being compensated for service-connected injuries or for the widows and children of veterans who died of service-connected causes.

The four present board members, Monvel Cuevas, Tommy Shaw, Johnny Banks and Eric Larsen, have until March 30 to file an answer to the suit against them which was filed March 10.

The suit against the four board members also includes a request to enjoin the board from further action until new elections can be held. However, no such injunction has been received and the board has proceeded with regular business.

Necaise elected school board president

PASS CHRISTIAN — The Pass Christian School board in its regular session elected Gary Necaise board president for the next school board year. Necaise, who has been a member of the board since 1971, replaces Bidwell Barnes who served as board president since March, 1974.

Jerrold Winstead was elected vice-president and Lewis Harshbarger was elected board secretary.

Captain Donald DeMetz served at the meeting for the first time as a board member. He was recently appointed by the mayor and board of aldermen to replace Ernest Benvenuti.

Superintendent LeRoy

Lizana informed the board that the school district has not received the insurance policy on liability insurance for school board members. He stated that he had received correspondence and had telephone conversations with the company and had assurances that the board had liability coverage. However, the school district did not have a policy in its possession.

Hartwell Gex, insurance agent of record for the school district, appeared before the board to further explain the fire and extended coverage insurance on the school districts' facilities.

Gex indicated that the policy was in the writing stages and should be in the school office by the end of the week.

Acting on the recommendation of Lizana and the principal of each of the district schools, the board approved teachers for the 1975-76 school term. Those approved include LeRoy Lizana, superintendent; George T. Watson, assistant superintendent; and Shelia Russell, drug education specialist.

Those from Pass High included: Horace Overby, Dr. Paul Shafer, Betty Terrell, John Deem, Elizabeth Hertel, Walter McCracken and David Dedeaux.

Also, Charles Gordon, Jennifer Ladner, Dale Moran,

Willie C. Acker, Dale Clark, Karen Payard, Prentiss Ginn, Norma Graham, Linda Jordan, Vicki Kemp, Gwendolyn Lawyer and Linda Lightsey.

Nancy Lockhart, Lula Moore, Kenneth Matthew, Evelyn Montgomery, Floyd Rayborn, Patrick Rosella, Gail Ruspoli, Alva Singleton, Ann Stamps, Theodore Stechmann, Dorothy Warner, Lawrence Webb, and Charles Weston.

Those from Pass Christian Middle school include: Adrian Swanier, Grover Kirksey, Willie Brownley, Jerry Johnston, Huey Singleton, Shirley Ray, and Winston Ausmer.

Also, Glennie Caldwell, Annie Conley, Marian Crewell, Marilyn Dedeaux, Brenda Gee, Betty Ginn, Elsie Hutton, Bobby Holder, William Jennings, Betty Jordan, Dick Kinser, Mary Kinser, Batty Moffett, Kaye Rendfrey, Glee Simmons, Orni Twyner, Robert White, and Theodore Williams.

Those returning to Pass Christian Elementary School are Dr. Carl Shafer, Kay Berry, Mary Bowser, Julia Cerra, Minnie Ausmer, Katherine L. Bentz, Mattie Bradley, Mary Campbell, Lettie Evans, Patricia Fulgham, Catherine McDonald, Diana Peel, Bessie Randall, Pauline Rivers, Joelle Sacks, and Corena Swanier.

Returning to DeLisle Elementary School are Charles Powell, Maria Mutzi, Kathy Sarris, Judy Guy, Doris Hill, Ruby Adams, Rose Mary Williams, Mildred Rutledge, Jessie Hathorn, Sister Mary Harkins, Clementine Williams, and Shirley Walton.

The board also accepted the resignation of Mrs. Beverly Storch as a teacher at Pass Christian Elementary and Bill Stevens as head football coach and athletic director at Pass High.

Mrs. Mary Betz was hired as a secretary for the Middle school, and C.J. Duckworth was elected as a janitor.

that's news!

Bill Dubuison of Bay St. Louis recently had a run-in with a buzzard on Highway 49 between Perkinston and Wiggins. He was traveling south at 55 mph and ran into a buzzard that was flying straight at his VW. Neither the bird nor the car fared too well. The windshield shattered, and Dubuison received minor scratches. As for the buzzard, well, it is now buried among the trash in a garbage heap between Perkinston and Wiggins.

Governor, Alford swap praise

Governor Bill Waller signed legislation last week amending the County Purchasing Act of 1974 to permit minor purchases by county supervisors without the detailed paper work required on all other purchases.

"Since county government is the corner stone of our grass roots system of government," Waller said, "It is important that we have the modern tools necessary to provide services for our people."

Waller said he wished to commend Mississippi Association of Supervisors president Sam Alford and the leadership of the association for their positive and progressive efforts to make the laws more responsive to the people.

Alford and the governor swapped compliments with Alford writing Waller April 7 praising him for walking "where angels fear to tread" and for providing leadership and action when the going has been tough.

It is not known whether Alford's high praise of the governor triggered the governor's decision to repeal portions of the controversial Purchasing Act or not.

The association has complained bitterly since enactment of the purchasing act his year, charging that lawmakers were making it impossible to get the simplest tasks done by creating a mound of paperwork.

Health Board urges rubella vaccination

Parents are encouraged to have their pre-school age children vaccinated against rubella, commonly called German measles, according to Dr. Durward Blakey, head of Disease Control for the State Board of Health.

Dr. Blakey indicated that the primary risk was to unborn children.

"The disease is primarily carried and spread by children," he said. "Women who are pregnant often have young children around the house and often they give the disease to the mother."

"The damage that can occur is not to the mother, but to the unborn child," he said. "Because many times if a pregnant woman contracts the disease, it can cause congenital defects in the unborn child."

"For that reason, and of course, against the spread of the disease to other persons, we strongly advise parents to have their children immunized," Blakey added.

He emphasized that parents should have their children immunized in the spring since the warmer seasons can bring many rashes and diseases that can mimic rubella.

Parents should contact local health department for further information.

Bicentennial News

The Bay-Waveland Hancock County area stands a very good chance of being selected as an official Bicentennial locality now that guide lines have been met in all categories for the three-fold "Thematic Coverage".

Festival USA will consist of planned parades and fire work display, while Heritage '76 is now in the process of completion. Plans are underway to donate display cases to house artifacts and memorabilia to the City County Library and a $2,000 grant is being applied for.

An anti-litter and general clean up campaign has gotten under way with emphasis on business establishments in Bay St. Louis, according to a report given by Mayor Warren Carver Sunday night before members of the Bay-Waveland Hancock County Bicentennial Association.

Carver told committee members the Bay St. Louis police force has been instructed to warn first offenders, to be followed by written notices and should it be necessary to take action against offenders they will be "brought into the courts with a fine up to $50" made at the discretion of the judge. "I have told the judges not to be too lenient", Carver added.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, represented by Mrs. Lucille Boudreaux and Mrs. Elda Duke, volunteered to aid in the clean-up campaign by continuing a cemetery clean up project and by improving land owned by their association on Third Street near the Webb Community Center. A monument to the war dead is planned for this plot.

Lou Fernandez, who represents the historical group, told the group there has long been a need for a safe and central location to make available to residents of Hancock County the visible links with the past.

Bro. Pierre asked the group to name a coordinator to replace him, since he is leaving the area at the close of the St. Stanislaus school year to accept his appointment at Brother Martin in New Orleans.

Social Security

Quarterly wage reports and social security contributions for household workers are due by April 30, according to Charles E. Wofford, social security district manager in Gulfport.

People who pay a household worker $50 or more in cash wages in any three month calendar quarter must send a report of the wages, along with the social security contribution, to the Internal Revenue Service within one month after the end of the quarter.

Wage reports and social security contributions for January, February, and March of 1975 are due by April 30, Wofford said.

The wage report may be filed on a form available at any Internal Revenue Service Office. "Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees - for Social Security."

The social security contribution for a household employee is 5.85 percent of covered wages, and the employer pays a matching amount.

Social Security contributions build retirement, disability, survivors, and Medicare protection for workers and their families. People who employ household workers can get a free copy of the leaflet, "Social Security and Your Household Employee," at the Gulfport social security office at 02015 Pass Road. Phone 1-896-1324.

County Agent's Notes

John W. Smith, County Agent

DRAINAGE

Good drainage is necessary if you are to get and keep good stands of crops, especially when planting early. Do not allow water to stand around seed or seedlings. Good drainage also means faster growth of the seedlings.

Both good internal drainage and external drainage are needed. When soils have poor internal drainage, external drainage becomes more important.

Leaving the row two or three inches above the middle at planting time will give good surface drainage without leaving the seedbed too high for precision cultivation and chemical application. Planting on the bed will help insure good stands of early planted crops.

PESTICIDE SAFETY

Store your chemicals in a secure area. It is the only way to avoid possible exposure of small children to toxic materials. Putting a lock on the storage area is the first step in preventing children from being exposed to pesticides.

The storage area does not have to be fancy, but it must prevent chemical containers from freezing or being damaged. It must also prevent the entry of children.

CORN PLANTING

Early planted corn has better yields. By planting early, the crop benefits from the best distribution of rainfall and the most favorable temperatures as it matures. Insect and disease problems will be less when crop is planted early.

Corn seed will germinate when the soil temperature reaches 50 degrees. Good quality seed can be planted seven to 14 days before soil temperatures reach this point so corn can be growing as soon as possible. Delaying planting reduces yields, so get the crop planted early.

Supplies of some seed varieties are short because of bad weather in the corn belt last year. The demand for corn seed is up in our area, so for a better chance of getting desired varieties get your seed as soon as possible.

HOT CROSS BUNS

It was a universal custom (and still is in Catholic countries) to mark a new loaf of bread with the sign of the cross before cutting it, in order to bless it and thank God for it. On special occasions the cross was imprinted on the loaf before baking, as on the Christmas loaves in Southern France and in Greece. On Good Friday, loaves bearing an imprinted cross are eaten in Austria.

In England, from the end of the fourteenth century, buns were baked with a cross mark on them. They are said to have originated at Saint Alban's Abbey in 1361, where the monks distributed them to the poor. Whatever their origin, these "hot cross buns" became a famous Good Friday feature in England and Ireland, and later in this country. They were made of spiced dough, round in shape, with a cross made of icing on the top.

In ancient times the hot cross buns were considered blessed and powerful against all kinds of sickness and dangers. Eating them on Good Friday was said to protect your home from fire. People would keep them through the year, eating them as medicine or wearing them as charms against disease, lightning, and shipwreck.

HOT CROSS BUNS

1 yeast cake
1 cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup shortening
1 egg, beaten

1 cup shredded citron
1 cup seedless raisins
3 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
Powdered sugar or thin white icing

Soften the yeast in the lukewarm water. Scald milk, add sugar and shortening, and cool. Add the beaten egg, the yeast, citron, raisins, and the flour, sifted with the salt. Knead and let rise to double its bulk. Shape into buns, place on greased baking sheet, and let rise until light. Brush with a little milk, and bake at 375 degrees F. for about 20 minutes. When done, cover with powdered sugar in the shape of a cross or do the same with a Thin White Icing.

WORKING ON WELFARE

When you offer some of the people something for nothing -- and establish very few safeguards against fraud -- you might as well offer an engraved invitation to misuse your good intentions.

That's one of the problems with our nation's welfare system, particularly the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program (AFDC). It has so few real restrictions and so many glaring loopholes that we literally throw away millions of dollars each year.

To correct some of these deficiencies and to direct the money where it is really needed, I am co-sponsoring the National Welfare Reform Act of 1975. If it is enacted, it should save the American taxpayers something in the neighborhood of $1.7 BILLION a year!

And the good thing about it is that the legitimate recipient, whose family is in need through no fault of their own, is not affected. In fact, they could end up with even greater assistance as a result of the bill.

For the skeptics who don't believe such a program can work, I suggest a hard and careful look at a similar California experience with welfare reform. In the last four years, the caseload has dropped by 360,000 persons from the 1971 peak of 1.6 million.

And all of the remaining welfare recipients had their grants increased by approximately 27 per cent immediately and by another 16 per cent in succeeding years -- all from the savings that were realized!

If enacted, this bill will put an abrupt end to the practice of freeloaders who manage to get on welfare rolls and earn high incomes at the same time. It will eliminate people from the rolls who should not benefit at all from tax-support assistance.

One particularly appealing feature of the bill will require use of a standardized photo identification card -- which will immediately cut down on opportunities for fraud. Additionally, it will provide 50 per cent federal matching funds for local law enforcement fraud control costs.

Another section of the bill will define "child" as one below the age of 18. A "child" in the current program can be as old as 21.

Other strong features of the bill would:

—Require a cross-check with state and federal income tax agencies to determine if a non-needy person living with a welfare family has claimed any members of that family as dependents.

—Make it clear that states may require a community work experience program as a condition for eligibility.

—Standardize sanctions against able-bodied employable recipients who voluntarily leave or refuse to look for or accept employment.

—Simplify and decentralize the fair hearing process.

—Require states to establish criminal sanctions for willful and knowing misuse of a welfare grant.

—Require military personnel to make and forward allotments of their pay for the support of their families.

As you can see, the concept of family responsibility and child support requirements will be strengthened by this bill. At the same time, it will permit a more reasonable allocation of resources to those persons who are truly in need of help.

The only people who are happy with the current welfare program are those who are riding it for everything they can get out of it. Everyone else says we need to make it a better system.

The National Reform Act of 1975 will do just that. I intend to work for its enactment.

Veterans Information

Q How many Spanish-American War veterans are there, and what is their average age?

A — There are about 1,200 living Spanish-American War veterans out of 392,000 participants in the conflict that ended in 1902. Their average age is 94.9 years, according to the Veterans Administration.

Q — As a veteran's widow, I was drawing Veterans Administration pension until I remarried. Since my second husband died recently, can I get back on the pension rolls?

A — Yes. Under current law, a formerly eligible widow may regain her pension if the subsequent remarriage ends in death or divorce — provided her income and net worth do not exceed income limitation.

Q — I am an 18 year old son of a veteran who has a 60 per cent service-connected disability. Am I eligible for Veterans Administration education benefits?

A — No. Only children of veterans who suffered permanent, total disabilities or deaths from service-connected causes, or children of military service personnel missing in action or prisoners of war for more than 90 days are eligible for education benefits.

'Sugar' lining

The silver lining in high gasoline prices is that by discouraging unnecessary driving they help ease our air pollution and traffic problems. We can also glimpse a touch of silver in the cloud now hanging over the world sugar market.

Housewives are aghast at the recent surge in sugar prices, but dentists and doctors may be less upset. They have been telling Americans for years that they eat too many sweets. Our national sweet tooth — leading to consumption of an average of 100 pounds of sugar per person every year — has a lot to do with dental and weight problems and is suspected of a role in many organic disorders.

Stennis opposes defense cutbacks

Senator John C. Stennis, (D-Miss.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said Friday that some hard policy choices would have to be made before any drastic reductions could be achieved in this year's defense authorization requests.

Senator Stennis made the statement in a letter to Senator Edmund S. Muskie, D-Me., Chairman of the Senate Budget Committee. The new Congressional Budget Act requires that standing committees make recommendations by March 15 for inclusion in a concurrent budget resolution which is to be enacted by May 15.

With hearings still in process on Administration defense requests, Senator Stennis said, any judgment now on reductions would be "premature." He recommended inclusion of the Administration budget requests — $107.7 billion in budget authority and $94 billion in outlays — in the resolution for national defense.

"Each year this Committee has made substantial reductions in the Defense Authorization request. Between 1970 and 1975, the Committee cut a total of $10 billion from the Procurement and R&D fund request. In addition, some $2.6 billion in annual savings would be attributable to the reductions of 261,700 military and civilian personnel that were recommended by the Committee beginning in 1972. However, because of the uncertainty in the international military situation some very hard policy choices would have to be made before any drastic reductions could be achieved this year," Senator Stennis said.

Senator Stennis concluded by suggesting that the timing of the new Budget Act may force Congress to choose between setting overall budget ceilings or deciding which budget programs are needed.

Stanislaus president leaves to accept new assignment

Brother Pierre St. Pierre, president of St. Stanislaus College in Bay St. Louis for the past six years, will be leaving the school at the end of this term for a new position at Brother Martin High School in New Orleans.

"Of course, I will be sorry to leave this area," said Brother Pierre. "I will miss the school and the people here in the community and I will also miss the water and the fishing. But I have never gone anywhere where I haven't been happy, and I am sure that I will enjoy my work at Brother Martin."

Brother Pierre will serve as Director of Services at Brother Martin High School, a position which he says is badly needed at present at the school.

"I have never served at a day school before," he said. "And I guess that will be the biggest change, plus the fact that the school is so much bigger than St. Stanislaus, serving 1,475 boys."

"The part that I will miss the most is getting to know the boys like I know the students here," Brother Pierre said. "I probably won't have a chance like that at Brother Martin."

The retiring president spoke proudly of some of the accomplishments that he and his faculty made during his tenure at St. Stanislaus.

Arriving at St. Stanislaus in 1969 just after Hurricane Camille, Brother Pierre organized much of the rebuilding of the campus including such facilities as the school's olympic size swimming pool, pier and new band hall. Pierre also organized plans for a new gymnasium which will be constructed in the near future.

In leaving his charge, the president complimented the Stanislaus faculty for maintaining a personal contact with each of the students.

"I am often asked how we have so much success with our students," said Brother Pierre. "How can we take a boy who is failing somewhere else and succeed with him, and I think it is this -- the personal contact and concern of each faculty member for every student."

Brother Pierre himself has been known for his work with individual students at St. Stanislaus.

He has worked with the school's choral group and also with the Confraternity of Sacred Heart, a group of students who help the elderly in the community.

"I have learned how generous our young people really are, and it has been a very rewarding experience for me," Pierre said.

Brother Pierre will end his term at St. Stanislaus following spring graduation, but said he will maintain close contact with the school while serving in his new capacity.

Longo receives deer for Waveland zoo

A fawn named Rainbow may be the first resident in a new Waveland zoo which Mayor John Longo has plans to establish. The six month old fawn was given to Waveland March 20 by state game wardens and is now being kept in a pen in Elwood City Park until a larger area is found.

The abandoned fawn was reported to the game wardens by Mrs. Lee Blackmer of Long Beach who found it about five months ago on a county road north of Long Beach. The Blackmer family fed the deer with cow milk until it appeared strong enough to find food for itself.

State game wardens, C. J. Cameron and George Wright, said that they had some difficulty in capturing the deer to bring it to the Waveland playground because it did not want to leave the Blackmer home where it had returned every night for the past few months.

Mayor Longo said that he hopes to soon add a doe to the new "zoo" which he plans to call Moonglow.

Board discusses deficit

The Hancock County School Board revealed a projected deficit of $40,000 following a financial meeting held in executive session Wednesday.

Board chairman Monvel Cuevas said after the meeting that approximately $40,000 was lacking in the school budget for two projects planned this year, including a new cafeteria and four new special education classes at Hancock North Central School.

Cost of the cafeteria was projected at $170,000 while the classrooms were expected to cost an additional $160,000 Cuevas said.

"We are presently working on some ideas to make up these funds so that we can proceed with these projects," he added.

Special olympics cost $1.50

It was incorrectly stated in last week's issue that the cost of sending a child to the special olympics is $10. This figure is the cost to the olympic organization, the cost to each child is $1.50.

In leaving his charge, the president complimented the Stanislaus faculty for maintaining a personal contact with each of the students.

"I am often asked how we have so much success with our students," said Brother Pierre. "How can we take a boy who is failing somewhere else and succeed with him,

Briefing precedes Mid East mission

A U. S. Department of Commerce official, Roger McCauley arrived in Mississippi last week to brief state officials and businessmen who will accompany Governor William Waller on his trade mission to the Mid-East April 9 - 27.

McCauley said that Governor Waller's participation in the mission would open doors to Mississippi businessmen that would otherwise be closed.

The Senate this week passed a bill authorizing the Game and Fish Commission's Wildlife Heritage Committee to acquire over 40,000 acres of wilderness in Jackson and George Counties.

Governor Waller said that the land, located along the Pascagoula River, would be set aside as wilderness areas where no development would be permitted.

The bill will now go to the House of Representatives for action.

Percy Quin State Park, damaged severely by tornadoes in January, has resumed normal operation.

Lloyd King, Park Superintendent, said that park cabins have been restored and most of the day-use area has been cleared of fallen timber.

The Mississippi Game and Fish Commission has reported that rising waters from the Mississippi and Yazoo Rivers are creating problems for wildlife in low-lying areas of the Delta.

Deer in flooded sections have begun moving to high ground and biologists of the Game and Fish Commission are urging landowners spotting concentrations of game to notify the conservation office.

Paul Fugate, Executive Secretary of the Mississippi Marketing Council, has predicted that the value of Mississippi's agricultural and manufactured exports will exceed $1 billion in 1975.

Governor Waller has vetoed the wage garnishment Act passed by the legislature because he said it placed unnecessarily difficult collection procedures on working people who have their earnings garnished.

The act would have required the employer to make out the worker's weekly check in the name of the employee and the attorney for the judgement holder. Under this provision the wage earner could not cash his paycheck until the attorney had also endorsed the check and made the deductions required in the writ of garnishment.

Safety commission warns against poisoning

WASHINGTON, D.C. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission urges consumers to observe National Poison Prevention Week, March 16-22, by checking their homes to make sure all toxic household products are out of the reach of children.

The Commission estimates that as many as one million children under the age of five may be accidentally poisoned every year.

The purpose of National Poison Prevention Week is to reduce injury and death among young children from accidental poisoning by creating public awareness of the problem.

CPSC administers the Poison Prevention Packaging Act, which requires that a number of household substances be sold in child-resistant packaging. Furniture polish, drain cleaner, turpentine, and aspirin products are among those products which must be safety packaged. To aid the handicapped and elderly, manufacturers of those items may use conventional packaging for one size of a particular product.

The Commission recommends, however, that consumers buy products with safety packaging. CPSC injury data indicates a 20 percent decline in the number of aspirin ingestions since the safety packaging requirements went into effect.

The Commission recommends that consumers store toxic substances and medicines intended for internal use separately from other household substances. Consumers should also keep the telephone numbers of the nearest hospital, doctor, and poison control center handy.

Small businesses schedule Gulf Coast conference

A minority and small business assistance conference sponsored by the State of Mississippi Office of Minority Business Enterprise will be held April 24-25 at the Ramada Inn in Biloxi.

Consultants from educational institutions, businesses and government agencies will inform the participants of opportunities to enhance business development.

The program will begin with dinner at 5:30 p.m., and the meeting will last until 9:30 p.m.

Dick Logan, proprietor of Logan's Texaco Station on Highway 90 in Pass Christian, presented Miss Lillian Famularo of Long Beach with the grand opening prize Monday, a 12-inch General Electric color portable television. At the end of the seven-week contest, Mayor Steve Saucier of Pass Christian drew the winning name from among 2,000 entries. The television was donated by Goodyear and Texaco to mark the grand opening of the station under new management.

Chamber sponsors sunrise service

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce will sponsor an Easter Sunrise Service Sunday at 6 a.m. on the south beach lawn of Christ Episcopal Church, 912 South Beach, Bay St. Louis.

The call to worship will be delivered by Dr. Gilbert Oliver, pastor of Main Street Methodist Church in Bay St. Louis, followed by a prayer from Reverend Lawrence Collins, pastor of First Missionary Baptist Church.

Father Gregory Johnson, rector of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church will deliver the scripture reading followed by special music performed by Mrs. A.P. Noonan of Our Lady of the Gulf Church.

The sunrise service sermon will be delivered by the Reverend Nathan Barber, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Bay St. Louis.

The benediction will be conducted by Father Charles R. Johnson, rector of Christ Episcopal Church.

Coffee and donuts will be shared following the service in Virginia Hall of the church from 6:30 a.m. to 7 a.m.

Voters must register twice

Bay St. Louis residents registering to vote in Hancock County must register twice, Hancock County Circuit Court Clerk, Henry Otis, has advised.

the Hancock County Courthouse to consider DuPont's request for a permit governing the placement of a discharge line.

DuPont plans to use a 24-inch diameter pipe that extends about 2,200 feet into the Bay.

The Marine Resources Council in January approved a similar permit for DuPont's outfall line after considering the proposed plant's effect on the marine life in the Bay.

Larry Kniffin of the titanium dioxide department of DuPont said recently he believed the Corps of Engineers will focus its study on how the pipeline in the Bay will affect boating safety.

Little Foxes captures southern flavor

A performance of the American classic, "The Little Foxes" by Lillian Hellman, played to capacity audiences at the opening of the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre's 30th season March 20-22.

Florence Hughes Dyer and Burt Barrett, producer and director, were mainly responsible for the success of the drama centering around the Hubbards, a Mississippi family in the 1900's.

The conflict of the drama, which is patterned after the biblical story of the foxes in the den, describes the way in which members of the family attempt to destroy each other. Nancy Gex portrayed the ruthless and self-centered Regina Giddens opposite male leads Pete Chapman and Jay Decker as the two brothers, Ben and Oscar Hubbard.

Emily de Montluzin repeated her role as Birdie Hubbard, a gently southern lady turned drunkard, who moves from delicate humor in the opening scene to a sad denunciation of her marriage at the close of the play.

Other strong performances were given by Doug Koger as Horace Giddens, Pat Schott as Addie, Terry Markel as Cal, Becky Markel as Alexandra, Mac McDonald as Leo Hubbard and Ed Craig as Mr. Marshall.

Egg recipes make Easter special

This is the week for preparing eggs in a special way for Easter. The Mississippi Egg Marketing Board offers the following tips for egg cooking, storing and coloring.

Tips on Hard Cooking
For perfect hard-cooked eggs cover eggs in a pan with enough water to come at least one inch above eggs. Bring rapidly to boiling. Turn off heat and if necessary, set pan off unit to prevent further boiling. Cover and let stand in the water 15 minutes. Cool immediately and thoroughly in cold water. This makes shells easier to remove and helps prevent dark surfaces on yolks.

Tips on Storing
To store eggs best, make sure shells are not cracked or dirty. Keep hard cooked eggs in the shell; this way, they can be stored under refrigeration up to four days. If eggs have been at room temperature for two hours or less, they may still be refrigerated without damage up to 4 days.

Tips on Coloring
Clean eggs in cold tap water only. Boil in enamel glass or stainless steel pan. Drop dye tablet directly into vinegar, add cold tap water after tablet has stopped fizzing. Skim off any foam with a paper towel. Spoon color over egg with plastic spoon while turning egg. If first egg has uneven color, add a tablespoon of vinegar to dye bath.

Deviled Egg Casserole
12 hard-cooked eggs
1 can of deviled ham
Salt and pepper to taste
Mayonnaise

Hard-cook eggs then cut in halves. Mash yolks then salt and pepper to taste. Add mayonnaise and deviled ham. Put stuffing into egg whites. Place in a shallow baking dish. Prepare sauce.

Sauce:
2 tbsp. butter, melted
2 tbsp. flour
1 c. cold milk
1/2 can mushroom soup
1/2 c. grated cheese, optional

Add flour slowly to butter. Blend well. Add milk and mushroom soup. Place over low heat and stir mixture until it begins to bubble; add grated cheese if desired. Pour sauce over eggs. Bake in a 350 degrees F. oven for 20 minutes.

Pickled Eggs
4 c. white vinegar
1/2 c. sugar
2 tbsp. pickling spice
2 bay leaves

2 tsp. salt
2 cloves garlic, peeled, optional
2 doz. hard-cooked eggs
2 bay leaves

Combine vinegar, sugar, salt, pickling spice, bay leaves, and garlic cloves. Simmer for 5 minutes. Pour over shelled eggs in a 2-quart jar and refrigerate for several days before using. (They may be held several weeks under refrigeration.) Drain before serving. Serves 24.

Additional recipes featuring eggs may be obtained by writing to: Egg Recipes, Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce, P.O. BOX 615, Pascagoula, MS 39567.

Miss Long Beach Pageant

The Miss Long Beach Pageant sponsored by the Long Beach Lions Club will be held June 7 on the Gulf Park campus. The winner of the pageant will be eligible to participate in the Miss Mississippi contest in Vicksburg in July.

Chairman of the Pageant Committee, Thomas L. Reeves, said that contestants must be single, high school graduates by September 4, 1975, and not less than 17 or more than 28-years-old by September 3, 1975.

The winner of the contest will receive a $300 scholarship from the Long Beach Lions Club, and the runner-up will receive a $200 scholarship.

Gulf Park offers graduate study

LONG BEACH- The Gulf Park campus of the University of Southern Mississippi is preparing to meet what they feel will be the increased higher educational needs of coast teachers and administrators in view of the recent teacher pay hike.

The hike will, in addition to salary increases for experience, award additional money for advance degrees and in some instances for work toward advanced degrees.

"We were showing an increase in our education programs prior to the salary hike, and, with this added incentive for advance degrees and course work, we are looking to a big summer in this area," said Dr. Theron Manly, coordinator of elementary education programs.

"We had five people graduating in elementary education with master's degrees last year, this year we have 40 with all school districts on the Coast represented," Manly continued. Dr. Charles Thompson, coordinator of programs in secondary education said graduate enrollment in secondary education had doubled from last year.

"Gulf Park will meet the higher educational needs of Coast elementary and secondary teachers," Dr. Joe Holloway, Gulf Park Dean, said, "but we encourage them to come in for counseling and academic planning so that we will know their needs in order to meet them."

Zimmerman - Schindler

Miss Colette Claire Zimmerman became the bride of Clarence Edmond Schindler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Schindler of Bay St. Louis, in an evening ceremony Feb. 28 in St. Clare's Catholic Church in Waveland. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Zimmerman of Waveland.

The Reverend George Broussard officiated at the double ring ceremony uniting the couple at a Nuptial Mass before an altar decorated with candelabra and standing baskets of spring flowers in the bride's chosen colors. Music was provided by organist Mrs. Mildred Means and soloist Ivan Sickmann, Jr.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white empire gown of silk organza and bridal satin with seed pearls enhancing the bodice, cuffs, and chapel length train. The fingertip veil of silk illusion fell from a pearl encrusted headpiece. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white sweetheart roses, baby's breath and English Ivy, centered with a white cattleya orchid.

rust and coral on a pale peach background. Sheer capelet collars accented the raised necklines and peach picture-brimmed hats were trimmed with coral ribbon. They carried nosegays of spring blossoms duplicating the floral dress motif.

Roddie Bilbo, brother-in-law of the groom, attended him as best man. Groomsmen were Sam Perniciaro, Jr., Michael Perniciaro, Warren Schindler, brother of the groom, and Lenny Rupp. Serving as ushers were David Rutherford and Rodney McKensie.

The mother of the bride selected a floor length gown in shades of beige and rust. Both mothers wore cymbidium orchid corsages.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the American Legion Home on Green Meadow Road. The guest register was kept by Miss Patricia Depreo.

The four tiered wedding cake was cut and served by Mrs. Richard Sallinger. Assisting with refreshments were Mrs. James McCarthy, Mrs. James Lagasse, Mrs.

Herbert Knight, Mrs. O.J. Howe, Mrs. Cliff Vogt.

For her going away ensemble, the bride chose a pale blue dress and matching jacket. She wore a cattleya orchid corsage.

Rust College offers public service curriculum

HOLLY SPRINGS, Miss. — A new major program in Public Services will be offered at Rust College beginning with the 1975-76 academic year including three emphasis areas of public administration, social welfare and political science.

The program is designed to prepare students for governmental employment at the federal, state, county and city levels said Dr. B. C. Njoku, Academic Dean.

The curriculum also provides background for graduate study in either of the concerned emphasis areas including law. While emphasis programs in the past have been available in social welfare and political science, this will be the first such program in public administration, Njoku said.

Another feature of the program will be night classes for federal, state, county and city governmental employees who may be interested in preparing themselves for supervisory positions or improving themselves for their present jobs. For individuals without a college degree but who have completed high school, all courses taken may be applied toward the bachelor degree.

Upon satisfactorily completing the four year program, the student will be awarded the B. A. degree in Public Services. In-service workers who may not be interested in the degree program may qualify for a certificate upon the completion of a number of recommended courses.

Financial aid available at Delta U

CLEVELAND, Miss. — Hancock county students desiring financial assistance to attend Delta State University should file applications for aid by April 15, according to Elbert Nelson, director of student financial aids.

Although, the demand for financial aid is usually greater than the supply of money, Nelson said students applying before the deadline should be able to receive assistance if they qualify.

Applications for aid will be accepted after the April 15 date, Nelson said, but students applying prior to that will receive priority.

"The old excuse that 'I can't go to college because I can't afford it' has lost much of its validity," according to Nelson.

"If anyone wants to attend Delta State and can't afford it, I don't see any reason why we can't find some form of financial assistance for them," he said.

Financial aid at Delta State is of three basic forms — work, loans, and grants. Scholarships, fellowships, or assistantships are available to students who show potential in academics, music, and athletics, regardless of family income.

One of the most popular aid programs, the Work-Study Program offers students a chance to get valuable experience in human relations and on the job performance skills.

The other work program at Delta State is RSE (Regular Student Employment), which offers a limited number of part-time jobs in various departments on campus. RSE jobs are usually limited to small numbers of students with special skills, since funds for the program are limited.

National Direct Student Loans are made directly by the University under federal guidelines, to students who show need. The student is not required to repay NDSL loans until nine months after he completes his course of study or leaves school. The repayment period may be extended over a maximum of ten years, with an interest rate of three percent.

Nelson said that he or members of his staff would be happy to answer any questions. Applicants may call him at his office at 843-2337 at Delta State, or write to Director of Financial Aids, Kethley Hall, Delta State University, Cleveland, MS 38732.

Bay Tigers open baseball season today

The Bay High Tigers will travel to Ocean Springs today to open their 1975 baseball season.

Coach Claude Yarborough is looking to his nine returning lettermen, six of whom were starters, to improve the Tigers' 1-8 record of last year. Yarborough has five pitchers in the bullpen. Four of those are righthanded. Tim and Adrian Favre are expected to share the brunt of the Tigers' pitching chores with Niles Blaize drawing an occasional starting role. Ricky Adams and lefthander David Turcotte will be ready to help in relief. Vernon Powell will be the starting first baseman and Arnold Fairconnetue will hold down the shortstop slot. Mike Ray and Tracy Klein will share the duties at second as will Adrian Favre and Niles Blaize at third.

The probable first-line outfield will comprise Mac

McDonald in left, Bill Ginn in center, and Jamie Fine in right field with Chris Johnson, David Trelles, and Santo Saucier expected to see a lot of duty.

Mark Thomas, last year's starting catcher, will start again this year as the Tigers' backstop. Ricky Jauffrey will be in reserve.

"We have no particular strongpoints," said Yarborough. "But we have several players that we are counting on to help us out."

After its opening day clash at Ocean Springs, the Tigers will return to their home field for a Saturday afternoon tilt with the St. Stanislaus Rocks. Gametime will be at 2 p.m.

Rhodes named to Pan-Am team

By David Pierson
Joseph (Doc) Rhodes of Bay St. Louis will represent the United States in the Pan-American games April 19-20 in San Juan, Puerto Rico. The 148-pound powerlifter received the long-awaited news early Monday. He becomes the first known Bay St. Louis athlete to represent the United States in international competition.

"I'm speechless," said his mother Mrs. Nelius Rhodes, upon learning of his selection. "I'm so proud of him. Nobody knows how hard he's worked. For 14 years he's worked for this. He did it all on sheer determination."

Rhodes will compete in the powerlifting event, one of the least known, yet one of the most demanding sports in international competition. Each lifter must attempt three lifts in each of the three categories — the bench press, the dead lift, and the squat. His best lift in each lift is then totaled to determine the final score.

In his most recent competition, Rhodes excited the crowd by deadlifting 610 pounds, a total that was more than four times his own body weight.

A three-time winner of national titles, Rhodes held several records in the 165-pound class, before a back injury forced him to compete in a lesser weight class.

Since then, he has competed in three events, and has won all three. During that four month span, he increased his totals from 1,330 pounds to 1,415. That progress contributed greatly to his winning a berth on the American team as the only 148-pound class powerlifter.

Prior to the Mississippi State Meet in Bay St. Louis March 1, Rhodes said he was trying to reach 1,410 pounds. He totaled 1,415 pounds — just ten pounds off the world's record. Now he is going after the world's record.

"I think I can reach 1,430 or 1,435 pounds," Rhodes said Tuesday night. "That's what I've been training for. Of course, the trip to Puerto Rico may affect my performance."

Rhodes will depart Bay St. Louis April 17 to meet the rest of the U. S. team in Washington. From there the team will fly to Puerto Rico. Doc is scheduled to lift on the first day of competition.

by DAVID PIERSON

Joseph (Doc) Rhodes is a refreshing change from sports figures that the public has grown accustomed to calling his heroes.

Unlike most of today's athletes who become big businessmen overnight, Doc remains an amateur, competing in a sport that has no financial rewards.

Doc Rhodes is not motivated by the profit incentive but rather by a sincere dedication to his sport of powerlifting, and this dedication affects his life style. He follows a strict diet and a demanding training schedule and, as a result of this dedication, now stands on the verge of breaking the world powerlifting record in his weight class.

Like all athletes, Rhodes has a strong competitive nature that drives him to perform feats that would normally be out of his reach. His performance in the 1973 national championships is an example of that competitive nature. He dropped 365 pounds on his chest during the competition and was headed for the hospital when he realized that he would only have to lift 605 pounds to win the national title. He successfully completed the lift and seconds later passed out from the strain.

Another trait that Rhodes shares with great athletes is his seemingly endless drive to better himself. Now that he has been chosen to represent the United States, Doc is looking forward to his next goal. He now talks about winning the world championships that will be held in November in London. To qualify for that world meet, Doc must again win the national title.

After learning of his selection to the American team, Doc said, "I just hope I don't embarrass myself." Most people would agree that the only way he could embarrass himself now is to get lost on the trip to the Pan-American games.

Slidell edges Pass Pirates, 8 - 7

The Pass High Pirates suffered their first loss of the season Tuesday afternoon when Slidell scored two unearned runs in the bottom of the last inning to win 8-7.

The Pirates led 7-6 going into the bottom of the seventh, but an infield error, a base on balls and a single quickly tied the game and put the Pirates

Donnie Bentz went the rest of the way for the Pirates, walking six, fanning six and getting charged with the loss. Slidell's relief pitcher Brothers was credited with the win.

The Pirates battled back with a run in the second and tied the game in the fourth inning with solo homerun by

With no one out and runners on first and third, Pirate shortstop Parker Duplessis fielded a ground ball and tried to throw out the winning run at the plate, but the throw was too high.

Slidell's last-inning rally was typical of the loose-style play of the game. Nine errors were committed, and the lead exchanged hands three times in the wild affair.

Scoring four runs on pitcher's gifts, Slidell knocked starting pitcher Henry Malley out of the box in the first inning. The first two batters received free passes. After an RBI single, Slidell received another walk and a hit batsman before Malley was relieved.

Stanislaus netters win, 4 - 1

The St. Stanislaus-OLA netters added another body to its pile of victims with a 4-1 win Friday afternoon over Long Beach at the Gulf Park campus courts.

Susan Bevenuti and Tricia Dickinson kept their undefeated record intact with a 6-1, 6-2 win over the Long Beach girls' doubles team of Martha Loftus and Beck Taylor.

In the boys' doubles match, Frank Cospelich and Nick Nazeretian of Long Beach battled evenly with the Stanislaus team of Tom Piland and Bayne Dickinson for most of the afternoon before falling 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. The Long Beach team was leading in the first set 4-2, but then the Piland-Dickinson team reeled off four straight games to claim the set.

Bob Warner and Susie Tabor, the SSC-OLA mixed doubles team, beat Lee Lott and Maria Dauro in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. And Lis Lagarde easily disposed of Ingrid Perry 6-1, 6-0 in the girls' singles match.

In its only A-team win of the afternoon, Long Beach's Don Gaddy used a strong first serve to upend Mark Stipulkoski 6-4, 6-1. Stipulkoski stayed even with last year's district champion throughout the first set by virtue of well-placed shots, but his reluctance to put away points at the net proved the difference. In the second set, Stipulkoski's resistance was gone, and Gaddy overpowered him with strong shots.

Eddie Alexander beat Stanislaus's Frank Sagnibene 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 for Long Beach's only B-team win. Stanislaus won the other four matches with the closest contest coming in the mixed doubles where Paul Schmidt and Terri Murtagh of SSC-OLA edged Jay Histon and Kathy Hager 2-6, 7-6, 6-1.

Stanislaus now owns a 7-0 season record, and Long Beach is at 1-1. SSC-OLA are taking the week off for spring vacation and are not scheduled to play again until its April 3 match against Bay St. Louis.

Long Beach will play St. Martin 3 p.m. Tuesday at the Gulf Park courts.

Bearcats trounce Gulfport

Thirteen is proving to be not only the Long Beach Bearcats' lucky number but also their only number. Last week they trounced the Gulfport Commodores 13-4. It was the second time in two outings that the Bearcats scored 13 runs against their opponents.

Bill Lansdale went the distance for Long Beach, allowing just four hits, walking four, and striking out six. Lansdale also contributed to the hitting spree with two triples and three rbi's in five at-bats.

The Long Beach defense got the Bearcats started on the right foot when shortstop Tommy McKay and first baseman David Croenne combined for an inning-ending double play in the first.

In the second inning, the Bearcats began their assault on Gulfport pitcher Van Doudna with a four run rally. Then they added three more in the third to take command of the game. The game was still within reach for the Commodores who trailed 7-3 after five innings, but a 5 run Long Beach outburst in the sixth ended the Commodores' hopes.

Long Beach (2-0) will resume play this afternoon with a 1 p.m. game against Pearl River, La. Friday the Bearcats will entertain Ft. Walton Beach in a doubleheader starting at 3 p.m.

Pass High sweeps relay events

The Pass High track team swept all three of the boys' relay events Friday at a five-school tune-up meet in Gulfport and scored 37 points in overall scoring to out-distance second place Gulfport East with 29 points.

In addition to the three relay events - the 440 relay, the 880 relay, and the mile relay - the Pirates also won in the 100 yard dash competition with Darel Lang's 10.4 time.

Among the nine returning track lettermen on the boys' squad are the four runners who earned a District 8-A runner-up berth in the mile relay. Reginald Dedeaux, Wayne Bradley, Gerald Ellis, and Able Page were clocked at 3:39.9 to lead all competitors in the mile.

The girls' squad also shows promise for the new season. Seven of the nine squad members are returning lettermen.

"I'm anticipating a pretty good year for us," said Pirate track coach David Dedeaux. "But we need to improve on our distance events."

The field events - such as the discus and the shot put - were not included in Friday's meet, Dedeaux said, because the meet was designed to get the track team in shape for the upcoming season.

Other teams competing in the day-long event were Gulfport, Gulfport East, Harrison Central, Long Beach, and the Biloxi girls.

with an infield error, a base hit, and a bunt that saw all hands reach safely.

Then, with one out, Pirate first baseman Jack Ulrich poled a grand slam homerun over the leftfield fence. The Pirates then reloaded the bases, and Mark Jenkins drove everyone home with a bases-loaded double.

Stanislaus got its only run of the afternoon when Monty Elchos singled in the fifth inning, advanced to second on an infield out, took third on an error, and scored on a fielder's choice.

Aaron Swanier, who went the distance on the mound for the Pirates and was credited with the win, walked six, fanned six, and yielded just two hits.

The Stanislaus starter, Dan Ford, gave up eight runs and seven hits in the five innings he pitched. Mike Graeber allowed two runs three hits in relief for the Rocks. He walked one and fanned one.

Stanislaus' bad luck stayed with them throughout the game. In the bottom of the sixth, Rock second baseman Perry Elchos was involved in a three-player collision in shallow rightfield and was removed from the game. The mishap helped the Pirates to its final two runs of the afternoon.

Magnolia will now advance to the national tournament set for next month in Jefferson Parish, Louisiana.

Two local teams, Pass Christian and Long Beach were eliminated in earlier action. The Pass cagers were eliminated in the first round by the Big Red Hardwood Club. Long Beach beat the North Biloxians 73-52 in the first round but were outclassed by New Iberia 84-46. In a consolation game, Pass Christian defeated Long Beach 72-43.

The AAU tournament featured a 30-second clock which prevented the teams from freezing the ball. Each team was required to shoot within 30 seconds.

Bay scrimmage ends spring training

David Turcotte was the leading scorer in the game as he and quarterback Bill Ginn connected on three TD passes. Chris Johnson provided the game's biggest thrill with an 80-yard touchdown run on an interception. The final Blue touchdown came when Clarence Piazza broke over the middle on a quick opener.

Mark Thomas paced the White team attack by scoring 10 of the team's points. Le Edward Morris and Wilford

Parker also contributed to the White cause with 8-yard touchdown runs.

Coach Woody Alliston said after the game that he was optimistic for next season. "I feel our passing attack will be outstanding next year with quarterback Bill Ginn and several fine receivers, and with our veteran linemen who were impressive all spring. I think we'll have a good running attack."

Catcher Richard Bouchillion was the only Biloxi player to collect more than one hit. Catcher Mike Favre and first baseman Donald Corr each got two hits for the Rocks.

Pirates win opener, 4-3

Henry Malley drove in the tying run with a seventh-inning double and scored with two out to give the Pass High Pirates a 4-3 opening day win over the Harrison Central Red Rebels.

Don Bentz, who drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly, was credited with the win in relief. Bentz pitched two innings of no-hit ball for the Pirates in relief for starter Myron Cook who gave up three runs and five hits in five innings.

Ross Reyer took the loss in relief for Harrison Central. Harrison Central led throughout, scoring in the first and second innings.

The Red Rebels led throughout the game, scoring runs in the first, second, and again in the fifth. Vic Swanier of Pass Christian had a per-

Big business supports young AAU athletes

America's young athletes are being supported on their road to international victory by big business. Recently the Amateur Athletic Union awarded the first citation in its 87 year history to Sarah Coventry, Inc. for the company's much needed support of the AAU's Divers Training Camps.

These camps enable young American divers to benefit from premier training before international competition.

The Diving Camps are a first in amateur athletic history. Other nations offer government subsidy for their amateur sporting teams while government subsidy is not permitted for U.S. athletes. The camps offer our athletes a chance to compete in international competition on a more even footing.

In the past our youths had to pay their own way in order to compete in international events. This year's training camps are being given credit for enabling our divers to win 12 medals in European competition and, for many of the participants in the training program, placement on national and junior Olympic teams.

In presenting the citation to Rex Wood, President of Sarah Coventry, Mason Bell, AAU's Director of Sports Development said, "The AAU has been fortunate that Sarah Coventry, Inc. has seen the enormous value of free enterprise support of amateur athletics. Their (Sarah's) has served as a source of strength and inspiration to hundreds of thousands of AAU volunteers throughout the country."

Rex Wood in accepting the citation said, "Our company has been fortunate to receive many awards but this one is especially meaningful. The opportunity to help young Americans achieve their potential while representing our country so well is indeed an honor for Sarah Coventry. We are happy to be a part of a winning team and hope that other businesses will also become interested in supporting our young athletes."

KETCHUM

By L.S. (Dec) Elliott

We had spring weather over the weekend. No rain, not much wind and the fish were biting, black bass and perch, we mean.

The only good water was found in Black Bayou, Mills Bayou, and Gray's Ditch.

There was plenty of boat traffic and lots of fishermen taking advantage of the weekend. Most of them were fly fishing, casting or even fishing with live bait on the old perch poles.

Didn't hear too much about salt water fishing because I spent the week in Baton Rouge with my son Luke and his wife Sue. They brought me home Friday, and we went fishing Saturday. Caught a nice mess of bass and perch. Speaking about women casters, Sue is one. Got her share of bass. Used Luke's bass boat which is a honey.

Roy Baxter's Fishing Camp at Pearlinton was a busy place over the weekend. Roy has built a launching ramp but still has the hoist for launching boats. The water in Pearl River is still bad but good water can be found near by in Pearl River's tributaries where fresh water fishing is excellent just now.

Junior Goynes and his son, Denny of Baton Rouge came down over the weekend. Both are fresh water fishermen and get their share most everywhere out. They have a bass boat which they share with their friends. Come again, fellows. Another father and son combination, when it comes to fishing.

Enjoyed a nutria supper in Baton Rouge. Luke prepared the nutria which was delicious, believe it or not. Guests were John Ristoph, his wife, Lois and Clifford and Natalie Comeaux. These folks are old fishing and hunting partners.

Before going to Baton Rouge, I stayed in New Orleans a couple of days, visiting my wife who is doing a little better just now. Enjoyed a poker game at my daughter's, Mrs. Ray Hoffman and family. They had as guests our friends, Herb and Angie Keller and daughter, all swell folks. Herb is a golf bug. We were celebrating Herb's birthday.

Perre Quintini got his share of bass and perch Saturday. Perre was using a fly rod with popping bugs. One of the best at that type of fishing. The fish were hitting on the surface. That is good news for those who like to fly fish. If you haven't fly fished, you haven't really fished-That's my way of thinking.

One learns something everyday. In this column recently I mentioned about raising and eating cucuzzas. Thanks to my daughter, Mrs. Tony Enterante, I learned how to spell the word; it is "Cucuzza". They are Italian squash. Can be stuffed with shrimp. Very edible.

My fishing partner, Ray Garner, sneaked off Saturday and got some green trout and perch. Saw him up Black Bayou.

Sheldon Seuzeneau, Jr. said he has been pretty busy, too busy to go fishing. Is getting his boat ready to go spring fishing. Sheldon does mostly salt water fishing. Sheldon, Sr. is still going golfing with Buey Blanchard.

There will be the Annual Seafood Dinner April 4 at the Stanislaus cafeteria from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Mark the date, now. This is sponsored by the St. Stanislaus Sideline Club. Members are urged to help at this affair. You can help tremendously even for one hour.

Sorry to hear that Dan Murphy is in Keesler Hospital. He suffered a heart attack but is improving as of now. Dan is one of our best fishermen.

Have had inquiries about whether hard crabs are giving or not. For your information Rusty and Leverage Russ caught 2 1/2 dozen the other day down by Bayou Cadet. Understand they are also being caught down by Cedar Point.

Mike Friedman is also catching hard crabs. He got about 4 1/2 dozen. Said they are running in mixed sizes.

Alton Morel and Sarge Garcia caught some mullets the other day. Sarge had the misfortune of getting a sprained ankle. Better luck next time, Sarge. The fish were caught in one of the Lakeshore canals.

Had the pleasure of talking to Claude Scanlan last week. Said he was too busy working

Ladies' pro golf is gaining — slowly

Sandra Haynie smacked a drive about 230 yards and said the nation's lady golf professionals will have to go some to compete with the oncoming troupe of female tennis pros.
But she discounts reports that the Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament tour is heading downhill. All it needs to zoom upward to new levels of public exposure and fatter purses is a little more help from sponsoring corporations; television and the sports pages of American newspapers, in the view of this smallish, boyish-bobbed brunette who hits a golf ball like a 250-pound man.

One of the top money winners on the 1974 LPGA tour this year and second all-time earner (Kathy Whitworth is first), Miss Haynie talked at Whispering Palms Country Club, Calif., about the distaff side of pro golf as she demonstrated her Carbonite-built graphite-shafted driver, designed to give the shot-maker more distance and improved accuracy.

The gal pro tennis players may have gained some on ladies' pro golf in the last couple of years because of the national tennis boom and the fact that the net game has had such tremendous television exposure, Sandra concedes.
"It's easier and less expensive to televise tennis because of the confined area of the court compared to the sprawl of the golf course," she explains. "We have had only four televised (lady) tournaments this year."
"That's why we're talking now with the television people and sponsoring corporations — trying to get more TV exposure."

"Tennis is growing fast. Golf is growing steadily, but at a slower pace. But that doesn't mean we're standing still."

"In 1961 the LPGA had total purses of only $180,000. This year we are closing in on $2 million in purses and expect it to go to $4 million in the next few years."

"The men's PGA has purses approaching $8 million this year, but they got into the market 15 years before we even started."

"We had 25 or 30 girls playing on the tour in 1961. Now we have 75 to 80 competing each week of the tour. Twenty-two new ones qualified just this year."

Miss Haynie points out that Sam Snead, when he dominated the PGA tour a generation ago, won only $33,000 in prize money in his best year.

"This year at least two women could win more than $100,000 and two others more than $60,000," she says. The Texas-born Sandra already has won six tournaments, more than $62,000 this year so far and more than $300,000 since she turned pro 13 years ago.

Miss Haynie admits ladies' pro golf lacks some of the colorful and controversial figures who crowd the tennis courts — like Billie Jean King and Evonne Goolagong.
"I'm not controversial or colorful," says Sandra in her Texas drawl. "I just do my job, which this year so far has meant seven months of play without any vacation and a lot of time at meetings." She is

Shotgun test helps your aim

By DON MINNICK
Copley News Service

More than a few duck hunters return home empty-handed and disappointed.

The reasons may be many but one of the most important prerequisites of good hunting is to know your gun.

Some shotgunners buy a new gun thinking all they have to do is aim the barrel at the duck and the powder and shot spread will do the killing.
For the small amount of time it takes to test a shotgun for choke and pattern, it could pay off in more duck kills and less maiming.

Shotgun manufacturers bore chokes to their own definite patterns and for those hunters who switch, borrow or buy a new gun, a test could be in order.

There are many outdoor firing ranges where you can conduct a safe shotgun test.

Materials required are three pieces of five-foot-square paper, magic marking pen, piece of string 15 inches long, shells and shotgun.

After dividing your paper into equal quarter portions, tack it up, pace off 40 yards, load and fire one round into the center of the target.

Take the time to fire at all three targets; this will give you an indication of your sight pattern also and tell you whether you are shooting high or low, right or left, or dead center.

This definitely can enable you to shoot better if you know where your gun is shooting.

After firing at your three test targets, lay them on the ground, select one, draw a 30-inch circle, trying to include vice president of the LPGA and a member of its executive committee.

"Unlike the men pros, we run our organization right from the tournament sites," she explains. "That means a lot of time in conferences when we're not out there playing."

"Then there's the cocktail parties you must attend and the press you must meet. It's really tough. That's why we seem grumpy sometimes. And that's why I'm ready for a vacation."

SPORTSMAN OF THE WEEK — Ronnie Bretz, who is a printer, likes to fish and says he is sorry that he doesn't have more time to devote to his hobbies.

MAGNIFICENT MOREL

If you think the price of beef is high, try buying morel mushrooms!

In Spring, mushroom hunters along the Mississippi River (which is ideal habitat for morels) often sell what they gather for as much as $4 a pound. Morels have never been raised commercially, and their abundance in the wild depends upon warm Spring weather and plenty of moisture.

Not all morels are sold, of course. Many persons seek them for their own use since morels are considered the king of wild mushrooms when it comes to flavor and texture.

Morels are easy to recognize in the field. Their distinctive pine-tree shape and brown-to-grey color sets them apart. The cone-shaped head has a series of ridges and pockets and is firmly attached to the stalk at the bottom.

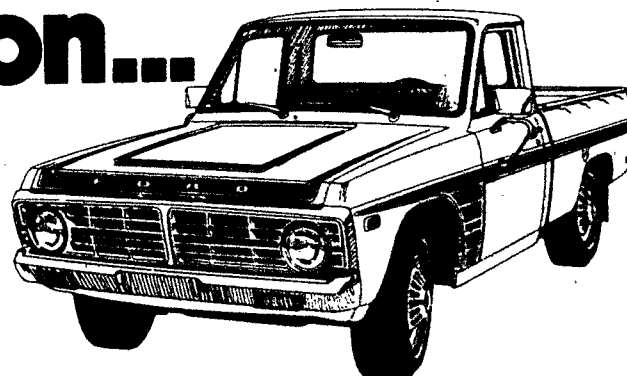

However, the outdoor recreation experts at Mercury outdoor boards caution that there are false morels which should not be eaten. These usually appear in summer and are also easily identified. A well-illustrated field guide is a wise purchase by any mushroom hunter.

Morels occur in various locations. They've been found under oak, pine, spruce and fir trees, in apple orchards, and are probably most abundant on islands in lakes and streams. Being fungi, they require decaying organic material for growth.

Equipment for finding morels is simple. You need a few paper sacks for storing them, and a walking stick for turning over leaves and looking under brush. An outboard boat is handy when searching along rivers, since you can then reach the least hunted locations.

Clean morels by slicing them lengthwise and washing them in cold water. The gills at Mercury prepare them by dipping the pieces in a batter made of flour, eggs and milk, and frying the coated mushrooms in butter until they are brown.

WOMEN MAKE NEXT BREAKTHROUGH IN SPORTS FASHIONS

The 70's have marked women's breakthrough in sports, and now comes a breakthrough in women's sportswear. A recent New York fashion showing called "Women in Sports" revealed the newest easy-care ideas and designs for today's active or sports-minded women.

Television's Julia Meade, commentator for the show, introduced this season's "hottest" fashion for the active women, the cold-water washable warm-up suit. She then spotlighted the latest looks for golf, tennis, skiing, skating, hiking, riding and swimming, all in easy-care outfits with a common advantage—they're all cold water washable in the machine.

Miss Meade, who assembled the new sportswear collection with the help of the fashion consultants for Cold Power, the original cold water laundry detergent, reported that while white has become the color for the golf course, colors are now pushing white off the tennis courts.

Also news in upcoming golf fashions is the come-

For the courts, three new tennis outfits by Jennifer Story and featured by Chrissie Evert for Puritan include a navy cotton tank top with white polyester shorts and red-white-blue belt, a bright yellow bare-backed sundress in polyester with white accents, and a cotton-backed polyester dress trimmed with bright green and red Gucci stripes.

In showing the new tennis colors Miss Meade stressed that manufacturers do not recommend hot water laundering for today's synthetic fabrics. The fabrics wear longer and stay brighter, she said, when machine-washed in cold water, and she reported that laboratory tests have recently shown Cold Power to be a better brightener for today's modern fabrics than any other leading detergent.

She showed five different versions of the popular warm-up suit that women will be seeing everywhere. It's coming in so many variations that it can double for casual social gatherings, at-home entertaining and supermarket shopping in addition to exercising and before-and-after sports.

The "Women in Sports" collection demonstrated how ski fans will be making a colorful show on the slopes this year. One design by Head is bright yellow, accented with orange, teal and green. Another is deep forest green with an electric yellow trim. Both suits are 100% down-padded for lightweight warmth and are completely Cold Power washable in the machine.

The new swimwear for the winter resort season leans toward the sleek tank suit in Lycra. Also new is a three-piece bikini—in pink-and-white striped nylon.

In all, the latest sports-wear look for women focuses on comfort, with the easy-care, easy-brightening recommendation of low-cost cold water laundering.

Overpopulation of animals eyed

A little girl walks into a humane society with her father in hand.

She surveys the dog population, then finally exclaims: "That one, I want that one."

The family already has three other dogs.

"But why do you want another? Why do you want that one?" she is asked.

"Because it's white. We don't have a white one."

Or a boy comes in looking for a dog.

Again, why do you want a dog?

"Well, I had one, but it ran away."

Or maybe, "I had one, but it got run over."

Those naive statements all serve to heighten the pet overpopulation problem and are just appetizers for far deeper and more complex problems.

Such problems were discussed, debated and argued recently into the wee hours of the morning at a conference held in Chicago under the sponsorship of the American Humane Association, the American Kennel Club, the American Veterinary Medical Association, the American Humane Society of the U.S., and Pet Food Institute.

Representatives from all over the United States and Canada were in attendance. Invitations went out to all organizations interested in the study and solution of overpopulation.

Studied in lectures, workshops and seminars were pet ecology, regulations and enforcement, euthanasia and adoption (that's right, surgical sterility and the alternatives, animal control and public education).

The goal was to define the problem and come up with suggestions on how to deal with it and the possible elimination of the problem.

And findings, according to Mrs. Neal, executive secretary of the San Diego (Calif.) County Veterinary Medical Association, were startling to all.

"In defining the problem," said Mrs. Neal, "we found that surplus or pet explosion are no longer appropriate terms. The supply and demand of kittens and puppies are pretty well balancing out."

"The problems are two: the unwanted animal and the uncontrolled animal."

"The uncontrolled animal most affects humans causing both financial and emotional drain."

"They pollute the environment, damage property, disturb the peace, disrupt traffic. They are a health problem."

"Brought up, too, was the problem of dog bites."

"The unwanted dog is a continuing problem, too. A family may decide they want a dog, then in a few months the novelty wears off and they ignore him, or give him to a neighbor who follows the same pattern or simply just abandons him."

"There should be a screening process for adoption of dogs and a determining criteria for what dogs are adoptable, according to the feeling of the group," said Mrs. Neal.

PETS GALORE --- The popularity of pets is a well-established reality--who can resist a cuddly puppy or a darling kitten? Peter Ash of San Diego, Calif., gets a puppy kiss and a kitten reaches out from the confinement of a humane society cage begging someone to adopt it. Happy scenes, but beware--pet ecology is a continuing problem and was recently considered at a nationwide conference which met in Chicago.

THE SULTAN OF SWAT

Ruth remembered with affection

In baseball this is the era of Hank Aaron, and the Atlanta Braves' slugger deserves all the accolades he gets as a home run champion.

However, to many of us who watched that big baboon, George Herman "Babe" Ruth, in the wonderful years of nonsense -- the 1920's and early '30s -- there never will be another Babe. A new book, "Babe Ruth, His Life and Legend," by oldtime sportswriter Kal Wagenheim (Praeger; $8.95) stirs our nostalgia and arouses generous portions of laughs, the extreme in admiration for accomplishment and, in the end, tears for a man who saved baseball and was unique in American public life.

I still remember well the first time I saw the mighty Bambino -- in the final game of the World Series with the Giants in 1923. I was 9 years old and this man who could hit the ball a mile was my hero. Neither did he let me down, hitting a home run his very first trip to the plate, the Yankees going on to win their first World Series, all the more satisfying because the much-hated New York Giants, with even then "aging Casey Stengel," were the opponents.

Wagenheim's story portrays Ruth as he was. As a player he was a great pitcher, a great hitter and an outstanding fielder. But the off-diamond antics of the mighty man of too many hot dogs is the man many of us remember just as vividly. He was an expert on the four-letter word, he was profuse in using s.o.b. in describing ballplayers and others who caused him difficulty.

But, he never was mean and he literally saved hospitalized youngsters' lives by delivering promised home runs.

Most of all he had a sense of humor. When a reporter during the Depression remarked that his salary demand ($80,000) would exceed the pay of the president of the United States, Ruth responded instantly, "But, I had a better year than (Herbert) Hoover."

Wagenheim leaves nothing out, and he reminds me of 1925, when my brother, the Babe, was something of a disgrace. He had a bad year at the plate and he was unruly, drunk and a mess on road trips. This was a cruel blow to youngsters like myself (then 11) and it was akin to the situation when a young worshiper of Black Sox scandal star player Shoeless Joe Jackson, tagged after Joe one day and pleaded, "Say it isn't so, Joe. Please."

However, 1926 was a brand-new year. The Yankees moved from seventh place to the pennant in one year and Ruth moved from a .290 batting average to .372, with 47 homers. And so it went, a Ruth who hit a record 60 homers in '27 and behaved just a little better than before -- fewer hot dogs, less beer and whisky and not quite so many ladies of the night in St. Louis.

Many of us watched Ruth many more times in the next six years and although age was starting to tell, he still was dragging in the customers, hitting the home runs, getting arrested for reckless driving and doing wonders for sick youngsters in hospitals. There even was a reunion as late as 1947, when Ruth was near death, with Johnny Sylvester, then a Princeton graduate and ex-Navy officer.

It was hospitalized Johnny for whom the Babe hit what even doctors said was a "miracle" life-saving home run way back in '26.

New York Daily News reporters found Sylvester and took him to Ruth's Riverside Drive apartment. Ruth was hoarse from a cancer eating away at his once 230 pounds. Sylvester wondered if Ruth would remember him, but was quickly reassured when the Babe, in pajamas, whispered, "Hello, Johnny. The last time I saw you, you were just a skinny kid."

Ruth never realized his dream of becoming a major league manager. His wild life-style betrayed him and even kindly old Jake Ruppert, Yankee owner and benefactor of the millions of fans the Babe lured into Yankee Stadium, had to tell him:

"No Ruth (the German brewer never could pronounce Ruth), you can't be my manager. You can't even manage yourself."

Then came Aug. 15, 1948. Ruth was failing rapidly and the telegrams and letters poured into his New York hospital room. He seemed to know the end was near and at 6:45 that night, he kissed his wife, Claire, several times and said hoarsely, "Don't come back tomorrow because I won't be here." At 8:01 p.m. he was gone.

The Babe is one of the few living legends who crossed the American scene, in sports or any other field. Kal Wagenheim has done a marvelous job in touching the nostalgia of those who remember the big baboon with such affection.

BOOK REVIEW

Elizabeth story brilliantly done

ELIZABETH I; by Paul Johnson; Holt, Rinehart and Winston; 511 pages; $12.95.

Elizabeth I may have been a Virgin Queen, but she was also no Puritan. For one thing, she swore -- heavily and often.

Puritans were shocked. One of them pointed out in an essay to her God's command against swearing, and charged:

"Yet notwithstanding, your gracious Majesty, in your anger, hath used to swear sometimes by that abominable idol, the Mass, and often and grievously by God, and by Christ, and by many parts of his glorified body, and by saints, faith, truth and other forbidden things; and by your Majesty's evil example and suzerance, the most part of your subjects and people of every degree, do commonly swear and blaspheme, to God's unspeakable dishonor, without any punishment."

Elizabeth's love of music, dancing and the theater also enraged the Puritans, who noted: "Plays will never be suppressed while her Majesty's unfledged minions flaunt in silks and satins... they had as well be at their popish services in the devil's garments."

Proud, strong-willed, yet remarkably tolerant in an age when the burning of heretics was popular, she ruled with a conviction that the maintenance of peace and public order depended on a judicious blend of continuity and change.

In this first full-length political biography of Elizabeth to appear for many years, she is portrayed as a liberal conservative -- deeply committed to the preservation of her inherited powers, the traditional procedures of government and the hierarchical structure of society, but intellectually capable of grasping the need for timely concession, and adjusting her policies accordingly.

In a proclamation read out in churches, she affirmed, "We never had any meaning or intent that our subjects should be troubled or molest by examination or inquisition in any matter, either of their faith... or for matters of ceremonies, as long as they shall in their outward conversation show themselves quiet and not manifestly repugnant to the laws or the realm..."

Unlike the remote Queen Elizabeth of school history books, she comes back through these pages as a living, breathing woman -- kind and compassionate but stern when the occasion warranted, reserved but by no means sexless, or cold to men's flattery, sometimes hesitant, but clearheaded under stress, courageous -- a woman who by temperament and conviction sought peace above all other objects.

She moves proud and serene against the backdrop of that spirited, perilous time, using her superb intellect and the intuitiveness of her sex to handle men and the needs of ordinary people.

The dramatic events of her age, her handling of state affairs, the well-known plots and conspiracies are all exciting reading again, with here and there some new light added.

What adds to the fascination of this study, however, is the marvelous resurrection of Elizabeth as a human being. The way she looked, how she dressed, the cosmetics she used, what she ate, her likes and dislikes, and what she thought about the people around her -- fellow actors in the great drama of her life -- are all described in meticulous detail.

Using copious quotations from the sources, the author tells the story to a large extent in the very words of the queen and her contemporaries.

It is a brilliant portrait of a magnificent woman who ruled England at one of the most glorious periods of its history.

In China, bells were rung to call for rain!

How do you catch a pigeon?

Years ago people didn't have garages for the simple reason that they didn't have cars. Instead, they had carriage houses or barns. These were often two stories high, with the buggies and wagons on the first floor and hay and feed on the second floor. And above this was the loft.

Up in the loft lived the pigeons. Some were brown and white and some were blue and white, but whatever their color there was something special about them. When they came sailing out of the barn and spiraled down to the ground to go strutting around, jerking their heads as they walked, you could watch them for hours.

Each child had his or her favorite pigeon, for we knew them as well as we knew our own friends, and oh! how we wanted to catch them. But try as hard as we would, the pigeons always flew away before we could get to them.

The O'Malley youngsters who lived across the street and were our nearest neighbors and most intimate playmates, also wanted pigeons, but although we all tried everything we could think of the pigeons always outsmarted us.

We scattered corn and grain in front of the barn and the pigeons flew down and ate and ate. But they watched us slyly with their little glittering eyes, and no matter how carefully we tried to sneak up on them, when we got just so close the whole flock rose in a body and went winging their way back to the loft.

Hot and tired and discouraged one day we all traipsed over to the O'Malley house, still discussing ways and means of outwitting our quarry. It was lunchtime, and we had walked home with the O'Malley youngsters so that they could walk back as far as the road with us. This divided things up so that each of us only had to walk from the road to our own house without our playmates.

Mr. O'Malley had just seated himself at the kitchen table (very few people used the dining room unless there was company) and noticing our long faces he inquired the cause. Grateful for a sympathetic audience, we related in detail the trials and tribulations we had endured in our endeavor to capture the beautiful but elusive pigeons.

Mr. O'Malley listened patiently, and while his face remained solemn, a close observer might have noticed a twinkle in his eye.

"Why, that's no problem," he exclaimed heartily. "If you want to catch pigeons all you have to do is put salt on their tails."

Well, that sounded easy enough. We had plenty of salt at home. We would go right away and try it.

"Oh, but ordinary salt won't do," Mr. O'Malley explained. "You have to have a special kind of salt. Here, Min," to his wife who was standing by the table, "give the girls some of that special salt on the table there."

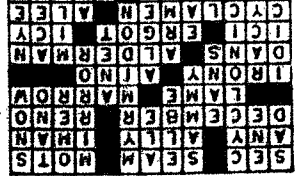

And Mrs. O'Malley obligingly gave us each a large handful, but why she laughed so hard when she did it we could not imagine.

However, grownups were beyond understanding anyway, and we had more important things to think about at the moment. Jubilant, we ran home and showed Mamma our prize. She, too, smiled when she heard our story, but she said never a word, and with restored confidence we took our salt and went pigeon hunting.

Needless to say, we never caught any pigeons, and it was years before any of us realized that Mr. O'Malley had played a joke on us and had really given us just ordinary table salt.

But when we did find out it only emphasized the truth and wisdom of his observation, which stayed with us forever — if you really want to catch any pigeons, you do have to use a special kind of salt.
